THOSE TAKEN BY HAND OF DEATH

Mrs. SMITH D. FLICK Dies at her Home in Liberty Township. Farmer or Adams County Resident Dies in Hanover.

MRS LOUISE B. APPLEBY

Mrs. Louise B. Appleby, widow of U. M. Appleby, who died three years ago, died yesterday morning at her home at her home in Mount Joy township, aged 77 years, 1 month and 14 days.

She was born in Baltimore, Md., and married U. M. Appleby, a teacher at Gettysburg on February 18, 1885. They resided in Adams County immediately after their marriage, and moved to Mount Joy township for about half a century. They enriched their golden wedding anniversary February 18, 1900.

The leaves have gone and two bright, fresh Appleby girls, Elmer J. Appleby of Mount Joy township; C. Rose Appleby, of Boston, Mass., were born to Mrs. Louise B. Appleby. Mrs. Anna Collins, of Mount Joy township; and Mrs. Mary G. Hoyt, of Connersdale, W. Va., were the only members of the Jacob H. Miller family. She also leaves twenty-eight grandchildren and eleven great-grandchildren.

Funeral services at her late residence Tuesday morning at ten o'clock, services conducted by Rev. Dr. T. J. Berkley.

FREDERICK J. COYLE

Fredrick J. Coyle, bachelor, a general agent of the Mutual Metallic Company, which operates the mines at Chambersburg, died Saturday at the Hospital section, the result of injuries received in an accident at stripping operations on the hillside. He left, however, a legacy of dynamite.

Mr. Coyle attempted to lay a line of dynamite ground, when suddenly the ground gave way, carrying him to the bottom, leaving a legacy of dynamite.

A stone was recovered to remove the earth which covered Mr. Coyle. This required several hours, when he was removed to the Hospital hospital.

He was president of the Gettysburg Fire Department, and was a successful striping contractor.

He was born in Delaware County, N. Y., in 1866 and lived at Chambersburg until his marriage. He was a man of fine physique.

He is survived by his widow, one son, the Rev. John J. Hill, and one daughter.

Mr. Coyle was a frequent visitor to the mines at Chambers.

BENJAMIN PHILIP SMYERS

George Philip Smyers, eighty-nine years old, a carpenter and builder, died five minutes after 12 o'clock Wednesday, at his home in York from a stroke of apoplexy. He had been confined to the home since last Friday. He had been disabled for several months by a series of attacks of trouble, but attended to his business affairs until last Saturday, when he suffered a stroke. His wife, Mrs. Anna, accompanied him to take a sick bed Sunday morning, purchased a development of drugs, and he died.

He was a semi-concrete state石工.

Mr. Smyers was a director of the York Iron Company, the largest steel foundry in the state, and was a former president of the Pennsylvania State Building Association.

In addition to his wife, he leaves three sons, George, Edward and Walter, all of whom are in the building trade.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Anna, and two children, Daniel and George, both of whom are engaged in the building business.

Funeral services will be held at the cemetery on Tuesday morning at ten o'clock.

DEATH OF CLIFFORD CHIEF

James Russell Campbell chief of the Hanover Fire Department, died at his home in Hanover on Wednesday afternoon, after a long illness.

He was 44 years and 11 days old.

Mr. Campbell's family includes interment at Wilson's meeting house near Newville, Mrs. J. M. Hartman of Hanover officiating.

MISS MARY HAU

After an absence of two weeks with a complication of disease, Miss Mary Hau died at her late home in Hanover on Wednesday morning at 8 a.m. She was 88 years old.

She was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hau, of Hanover, and was the widow of Mr. John Hau, who died in 1902. Mrs. Hau was a member of the First Lutheran Church, and was a member of the Mount Joy township for about half a century. They enriched their golden wedding anniversary February 18, 1900.

The leaves have gone and two bright, fresh Appleby girls, Elmer J. Appleby of Mount Joy township; C. Rose Appleby, of Boston, Mass., were born to Mrs. Louise B. Appleby. Mrs. Anna Collins, of Mount Joy township; and Mrs. Mary G. Hoyt, of Connersdale, W. Va., were the only members of the Jacob H. Miller family. She also leaves twenty-eight grandchildren and eleven great-grandchildren.

Funeral services at her late residence Tuesday morning at ten o'clock, services conducted by Rev. Dr. T. J. Berkley.
